

"Attention"

Film conversion to DVD is the only service we outsource. Recently we weren't notified by the company that provided this service, that they were no longer providing this service. We are currently searching for a new company to perform the high quality work that our customers expect from us.

We had fostered video always thought that the quality of transfer was important. Most home movie film is not very good quality to begin with, so the transfer should at least not deteriorate the quality of the image any further. This is not always the case with some people doing this kind of work.

Sorry for the inconvenience, Foster Video Productions
